WHO IS SCARED?

In pursuance of the course laid down yesterday, "to convey correct information to the public in regard to Governmental policy and enterprise," this morning's Advertiser publishes a very mild article under the caption of "Who is scared?" and proceeds to "convey information" which is well known to the public to be incorrect, and which the article shows on its face to be "twisted." There is a tacit admission that the Government has been interfering with the importation of firearms, and an attempt to defend its action. Of course, no man of common sense can possibly interpret this to mean that there is any scare! Oh, dear, No! The assertion that "the Government has been disarming rather than arming" is supported in this way: "It sent away on board the Kaimiloa its most effective weapons of war and twenty percent of the customary guard of the Palace, and the chief officers, in whom the remaining force have the most confidence, are absent from the Capital on various public duties abroad." This is probably intended especially for sending abroad by the steamer to leave today or to-morrow. The "information" is quite "correct" so far as it goes, but it stops short of "the whole truth," and is calculated to make "false" impressions on the minds of people not familiar with all the facts. The truth is, that the signs of scare have been manifested, since the departure of the Kaimiloa and the officers referred to. It is a waste of time to recapitulate the propositions and acts of the Government within the past week or two, for they are well known to every intelligent resident. They certainly tend very strongly to create the belief that the Government organ is endeavoring to mislead rather than to give correct information. There can be no doubt about there having been a scare of some kind or other. As to there having been reasonable ground therefor, is another question. If, instead of acting as though alarmed at the feeling of dissatisfaction among the people, the Government would adopt a course favorable to the people's good, it would show more sense and less ludicrousness.

MASONIC BANQUET.

HONORS TO THE GRAND MASTER OF
CALIFORNIA AND THE VISIT-ING BRETHREN.

A banquet was last evening tendered to Grand Master E. C. Atkinson and the visiting Masons by Hawaiian Lodge, No. 21, F. & A. M., and Lodge Le Progres de l'Océanie, No. 124, F. & A. M.
The opening ceremony was a reception in the parlors. The Grand Master took up a position at one end of the room, and as the brethren arrived, they were presented to him by P. M. Monsarrat. His Majesty attended by the acting Vice-Chanceller stood alongside of the Grand Master. About 9 o'clock the band struck up a grand march and the brethren filed into the spacious dining room, where covers were laid for 150 persons. Brother Monsarrat took the head of the table, supported on the right by His Majesty and on the left by Grand Master Atkinson. Suspended on the wall behind the seats of honor was a banner bearing a Masonic device and the words "Welcome, Grand Master." The tables were loaded with good things comprising all the delicacies of this and other markets, and the whole was profusely decorated with fragrant flowers. Brother Monsarrat called upon Brother Macintosh to ask a blessing, and then commenced the devouring of the good things provided. After full justice had been done to the viands on all sides Brother Monsarrat rose and spoke to the following effect:—

Your Majesty and Brethren—We have met this evening to do honor to a most distinguished guest, the Grand Master of California and visiting brethren. Members of the Hawaiian Lodge and Lodge Le Pro-gres, I ask you to unite with me in extending to them a cordial and fraternal greeting. Although Masonry has existed on these islands about 37 years, this is the first time in its history that it has been honored by a visit of the Grand Master.
We are pleased to welcome you, brethren, to our shores, and to do you honor. Let us drink to the Grand Lodge of California and the Grand Master of Freemasonry. The toast was drunk standing.

Most Wor. Brother Atkinson arose, and said in reply:—

Grand Master of Ceremonies—It is said there comes a time in the life of every man, when the heart swells with emotion which the tongue cannot express. Full well I know the depth of that saying, and recognize that time with me to be the present. When I take into consideration all the circumstances attending the visit to these islands, when I recall the efforts of the officers of the good ship Australia to administer to the comfort of the party, when I remember the magnificent reception accorded by the local brethren to me and those by whom I was accompanied, when I survey the magnificence of the scene before me in the poverty of my language I must fail to express the sentiments I feel.

Proceeding, he said, he thought they could well understand the feelings of a grateful heart, and all he could say was simply, I thank you.
He then dwelt on the benign influence of Masonry and the ancient history of the brotherhood. That brotherhood, he said, in the course of ages, had gradually extended its influence. The great military road from Rome to Capua and Tarpeian Way were among their physical achievements. In the excavations which had revealed to modern eyes the structures of early Rome the symbols of Masonry were found.
Traces were found alike upon the sunny slopes of France and Italy and the snowy steppes of Russia.
Still others there were upon the banks of the Rhine, the Seine and the Thames. Its principles received recognition at the coronation of English Kings in every century.
That stupendous edifice, the cathedral at Strasburg, was a monument of Masonry. But, however great and however imposing were the monuments raised under its auspices, they, like their builders, must eventually be brought down to mother earth. Notwithstanding this, when the last trace of their handiwork has passed away the elevating principles of Masonry would still survive in all their strength to guide, protect and bless mankind. To perpetuate those principles and spread those principles which the ancient brethren had wrought was the work of the Grand Lodge of California.

After dilating upon the scene presented from the S. S. Australia as they approached Diamond Head and sailed along the shores of this "beautiful isle garden facing the sea," a scene that would long live in his memory, he again reverted to Masonry and alluded to the fact that monarchs had not thought it derogatory to their dignity to cast in their lot with the brethren. Of this there was a worthy example present. In conclusion he gave the sentiment, "Long Life and Prosperity to His Majesty the King." (Loud Applause.)

His Majesty said in response: Worshipful Master, Brethren and Gentlemen—Allow me to thank you for the kind and cordial manner in which you have drunk my health, and for the kindly spirit which you have manifested. I am sure that this occasion has established between us more friendly relations than previously existed. The occasion must of necessity be a very pleasant one when we receive such men as the Grand Master and brethren of California. (Applause.) It pleases us much to see the visiting brethren and to give them a fraternal shake of the hand. The event of their visit to the Islands marks an epoch in the history of these Islands in that it gives us greatly to enjoy their company, and we hope during their short stay to do all in our power to make their sojourn a happy one. I will not speak at greater length, as there are seven toasts on the list, but I wish to call upon you to drink health and prosperity to "The President of the United States of America." (Loud Applause.)

The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm, but no reply was made owing to the intended speaker, Hon.
G. W. Merrill, being absent.

The next toast was, "California and the Hawaiian Islands—their commercial and fraternal relations." Coupled with the name of Senator A. P. Whitney who replied in a very eloquent and able address spoke of the financial condition of Hawaii, he observed that the imports and exports of these Islands last year were between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000; that 94 percent of that trade was with the United States, and all but about 2 percent of that with California. In the matter of tonnage, sixty percent of that trade was carried on in American vessels.

The immigration that came to these shores was chiefly from California, and of Chinese immigration a larger proportion came from California than from the Flowery Land itself.
(Laughter.) And now they had come to cement the ties already existing. He regretted the absence of His Excellency Mr. Merrill (through indisposition) who would have responded to this toast more ably. On behalf of the visiting brethren he begged to thank His Majesty and the Brethren of Hawaii for the hospitality extended to them. (Applause.)

The next on the list was "Our Visiting Brethren of the Masonic Excursion—a cordial greeting and a hearty welcome," coupled with the name of Past Master T. J. Crowley, whose happy reply was full of humor and wit, and was frequently interrupted with laughter. In the course of his speech he said it was evident that the Master of the Ceremonies had made a mistake, in calling upon him to respond for the visiting Brethren.

He should have called upon somebody who was not so well acquainted with our visiting Brethren as he was. A very small amount of good can be said of them on such short notice. (Laughter.)

Most of them came from the State next to that in which Her Majesty the Queen of these Islands was now enjoying herself. Nearly every one came from Maine, and some from Boston which is not far from Maine.
They consider Boston as big a place as Maine. (Laughter.) All he knew were from Maine. Unfortunately he was not born in Maine.
Napoleon I. had been born 3 months before he was, would have been an Italian instead of Frenchman. The visiting Brethren were from every grade and station in life.
He held a commission from the Governor of California, so they would see that commissions are not such valuable articles as Senator Whitney would give them to understand. He had no title, not even a title to any real estate, but he would say this. That there never has been and never will be a time when the visiting brethren have been so heartily and cordially received as on this occasion "I pause for a reply." (Loud laughter.) They recognized that hospitality was the first Christian virtue. In conclusion he said that, common gratitude alone would make it imperative upon them, (the visitors) to receive the Brethren of Hawaii as they had been received here. The speaker sat down amidst loud applause.

The next toast proposed by Brother Monsarrat, was "Masonry, the Handmaid of Religion," as responded to by Bro. Rev. Alex.
Macintosh, who eloquently ex-patriated upon the relations subsisting between the two. Though some might hold that the introduction of religion into the lodge room was calculated to introduce the sword rather than the trowel, he maintained that, rightly conceived, Religion and Masonry were inseparably connected. He curtailed his speech somewhat in case he should be accused of delivering a sermon.

Brother Monsarrat next proposed the "California State Grange," or the "Patrons of Husbandry," was responded to by Bro. Senator William Johnston, who explained that the Grange was an organization formed among the small farmers of California for their mutual advancement, similar in character to the Boards of Trade in cities. Its benefits are even extended to the wives and daughters of the members.

The "Pleasures of the Hour" was a toast responded to by Chief Justice Judd. In the course of a humorous and interesting speech he told an amusing story of a New York broker who was in the habit of stammering.
Having previously lived in Baltimore, it was noticed that he stammered more on going to New York, and he gave as the reason that it was "a b-b-bigger place." (Loud applause and much laughter.)

"The Legal Fraternity" was responded to by Bro. Powell of Oakland Lodge, No. 188, who, in expressing his appreciation of the hospitality accorded to the visiting brethren, expressed the pleasure he would feel in reciprocating the cordiality.

"The Ladies, God bless them," brought the list to a close, and the response to this toast was ably given by Bro. S. A. Baker, who spoke at some length on the indebtedness of Masonry to the ladies by virtue of the happy influence they exert upon the brethren individually.

Upon the call of the Presiding officer the meeting joined heartily in singing "Auld Lang Syne" and shortly after 11 o'clock the Brethren dispersed to their respective homes.
The menu was of a most recherche character and reflected credit on Manager Bartlett, who personally superintended the purveying. The band played during the early hours of the evening.

Webster's spelling book has had a circulation of over 50,000,000 copies.
